

Diane Marger Moore

813.894.8464

dianemargermoore@gmail.com

Diane Marger Moore has been a trial lawyer since 1978, when she graduated from the University of Georgia Lumpkin Law School. She joined her father's law practice in Atlanta, where she litigated everything from a death penalty trial to divorce cases. After a few years, she started her own practice in Ft. Lauderdale, Florida where she tried the first continuing criminal enterprise case in the US. She joined the Federal Defender's office until the case for which she was hired was dismissed based on motion practice. She also worked for a major civil law firm handling litigation matter, including insurance defense work.

Over the years Diane moved from Florida to Indiana after marrying the most tolerant man on earth. There she continued her litigation practice with the Indiana Attorney General's office - Federal Litigation Section, Civil Rights division. She later moved to the Marion County Prosecutor's office where she prosecuted arson and murder cases finally moving to the other side of the bench as a Magistrate and Master Commissioner in the major felony division. Diane also spent two years with the second largest firm in the State handling civil litigation and truck accident defense.

In 2001 she returned to private practice in Jasper, Georgia joining her father again. There she dealt with everything from death penalty cases, major divorce actions (Georgia had jury trials for divorce cases), construction litigation to arguing over trespassing chickens. Eight years later she moved back to her home state of Florida and returned to government service.

In 2011 Diane joined Baum Hedlund Aristei & Goldman PC where she was a shareholder. She was the primary truck accident lawyer for the firm and practiced mainly truck accident law for nearly 11 years. On April 30, 2022, Diane left Baum Hedlund to renew her acquaintance with the world.

Whether she is now retired or not is undecided as Diane loves the law, litigation, the courtroom, and her colleagues in ATAA.