Maxey Scherr is a partner at the distinguished Scherr Legate law firm. For over twelve years, she's practiced in her hometown of El Paso, Texas and across the nation representing clients in wrongful death cases, traumatic brain injury cases, 18-wheeler, and railroad and construction accidents. She dedicates herself to protecting her client's rights and doing what's in their best interest.

Maxey has tried over 40 jury trials with a multi-figure verdict across the board. Maxey's utilizes the law applied with common sense, compassion, strategy and science to help people. Before law school, Maxey received her bachelor's degree in psychology from the University of Massachusetts-Boston and did her post-graduate work in neuroscience at Harvard University. In 2008, Maxey received her law degree from the Texas Tech School of Law. She then joined Scherr Legate, which was founded 44-years ago by her father, Jim Scherr. Maxey's passion extends beyond the courtroom. In 2014 she ran for the U.S. Senate, and has been a tireless advocate for numerous causes.

Maxey has received various awards and accolades and has been asked to sit on different boards for the State of Texas and to speak on topics ranging from trucking law to traumatic brain injury. She is licensed in Texas, New Mexico and Illinois.

Maxey is looking ahead at how she can help the next person fight for a better future.
